

Department of Asian Languages and Cultures
University of Wisconsin–Madison

2020-2021 Chou Kuo-P'ing Book Award

Several awards will be given each year to undergraduate students who are studying and will continue to study Chinese during the following semester in the Department of Asian Languages and Cultures. This award is made possible through a donation by Professor Emerita Chou Kuo-p'ing, the founder of the Chinese program here at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Professor Chou, a dedicated teacher, devoted her entire career to teaching, promoting and developing Chinese studies in Wisconsin.

Professor Chou was very active during her teaching career, and often helped financially disadvantaged students, especially those who excelled in their academic careers despite economic difficulties. Although this award is based mainly on the applicant's academic performance, special consideration is given to those who are financially disadvantaged in order to carry on this tradition.

An applicant is required to submit an essay (300 words or less) stating their purpose in studying Chinese along with the application form. Please submit your application and essay to Rachel Weiss by a single PDF attachment in e-mail to rweiss@wisc.edu, by April 5, 2021 (5:00 pm CST)

Chou Kuo-P'ing Book Award Application

Name:

Major(s) & Certificate(s), please note college if not L&S:

Please list all Chinese language courses previously taken or in progress:

Course	Date	Location	Grade

Will you be continuing your undergraduate study of Chinese at UW next semester?

___ No ___ Yes, in the following course(s):

Do you consider yourself as being financially disadvantaged? ___ No ___ Yes *please attach a statement to describe how you are able to cope with this situation.

Please submit an essay (300 words or less) stating your purpose in studying Chinese along with this application.

Deadline: Monday, April 5, 2021 (5:00 pm). Please submit your application and essay to Rachel Weiss by a single PDF attachment to e-mail: rweiss@wisc.edu.